Staggering number of complaints make Haringey second noisiest

TURN IT DOWN

By Will Stone

HARINGEY residents are among the loudest in London – with the number of complaints about noise matching those in the West End.

In the past year Haringey received 9,500 complaints about noise from private homes, according to London-wide statistics obtained under Freedom of Information laws.

The number of complaints in Haringey is second only to nightclub and bar-packed Westminster, which received just 300 more in the same period. Yet the borough has more than 3,000 more residents affected by neighbours' noise than third-placed Newham, which had 6,352 complaints.

Noise pollution from a wide range of sources, including anything from incessant safety alarms and late-night noisy parties to roadworks and building construction sites, is a growing problem undermining the quality of life in our communities, according to Dave Morris, the secretary of Haringey's Federation of Residents' Associations.

But despite the huge figure, which represents 42 complaints per 1,000 residents, Haringey Council has only issued 179 enforcement notices, which are intended to prevent noise from recurring.

Ron Aitken, the Liberal Democrat spokesman for enforcement in Haringey, has argued that the council should be using its powers to improve the problem.

He said: "Residents who have to put up with this noise at nights and during the weekends are the ones who are suffering. I have had constituents who have waited hours for enforcement officers to turn up. But the problem is that there is only one dedicated officer to deal with noise across the entire borough during the night, when most noise from residential homes occurs."

Mr Aitken is calling on the council to allocate more resources to its enforcement teams, in line with other boroughs in the capital.

A council spokesman said: "We know how disruptive noise can be for residents. We deal with thousands of complaints every year. However, we deal with the vast majority without the need for an enforcement notice by way of a warning letter. Usually, talking to the person creating the noise or the threat of a notice is enough for them to stop."

He added that Safer Neighbourhood teams also help to fish out culprits during the weekend, which prevents enforcement notices being needed.

Mr Morris argued that the figures are not proof that the borough is noisier than others. He added: "While it is unlikely that Haringey fares much worse than other boroughs, I am glad to see that residents here seem more prepared to complain about these kinds of issues and to stand up for their rights."

Youngsters still at risk in wake of Baby Peter's death

By Will Stone

OFSTED inspectors have announced that children are still being put at risk in Haringey.

The progress report published on Friday follows the recent court case into Baby Peter's death, who was abused for months before he died in August 2007 while on Haringey Council's at-risk register. It aims to ensure the council is improving its methods of safeguarding children. While the report recognised improvements in clearing up a backlog of 400 unallocated cases it found that some cases viewed as low priority by the council's social services department raised "serious safeguarding concerns".

It said: "Despite persistent and concerted action, significant shortcomings in staffing and in the capability of some managers and social workers have restricted the rate of progress and children and young people are not yet consistently safeguarded."

Robert Gorrie, leader of the Liberal Democrats in Haringey, believes that consistency is vital to protect all vulnerable children in the borough.

He said: "This is an unacceptable situation. The inspection shows Haringey's children's services was in a significantly worse state at the beginning of this year than council leaders previously understood or admitted."

"The most urgent question is: when will the public have the confidence that children in Haringey are being safeguarded properly?"

"While the Ofsted report rightly recognises the efforts by staff to improve the safeguarding of children in Haringey the central message of the report is much less reassuring."

Claire Kober, council leader, has accepted that more needs to be done.

She said: "We're working very hard to address the issues identified by the inspectors."

"I welcome the fact that Ofsted has said that our three-year action plan is the right way forward."

"Ofsted has confirmed that we have made progress in some areas in the months since our joint plan was approved, but we know that much more needs to be done and more time is needed."

"We accept the findings of this report and are prioritising improvements to frontline practice and supervision. As everyone knows, there were fundamental problems with our safeguarding service and other issues, such as a backlog of cases, have come to light and decisive action has been taken in recent months."

Ms Kober said the council is undergoing a major staff recruitment drive and believes that regular monitoring by Ofsted inspectors will help.

Letters to Ed Balls begging for fairer funding for pupils

By Will Stone

EIGHTEEN governing bodies in Haringey have written to the children's minister urging him to give the borough's schoolchildren a fair deal.

The Fair Deal For Haringey Children campaign is calling on the government to match what it spends on schoolchildren in neighbouring boroughs such as Camden, Hackney and Islington with Haringey.

Currently a funding anomaly under the Dedicated School Grant's Area Cost Adjustment means that schools in Haringey receive £1,000 less per pupil each year than adjoining boroughs.

Now 18 governing bodies from primary and secondary schools across the borough have written individual letters to children's minister Ed Balls calling for funding to be made fairer when the government comes to review the way it allocates funds for schools in 2011.

Sinead McGlacken, chairwoman of the governors at Chestnuts Primary School in Black Boy Lane, Harringay, said in her letter: "We find it hard to believe that children in Hackney schools, who are less than a mile away from Chestnuts, are getting over £1,000 funding per year more.

"In real terms, if Chestnuts had equitable funding we would have an additional £400,000 in our budget annually. We strongly urge you to reconsider your use of a crude formula, which heavily penalises an already deprived borough."

Her letter goes on to say that if Chestnuts school received the same funding as neighbouring boroughs it would be able to fund six specialist language teachers, a special needs teacher, a school counsellor, social worker and a huge amount of additional resources.

Reverend Robert Allaway, chairman of the governors at Lordship Lane School in Ellenborough Road, Wood Green, wrote: "The east of our borough contains wards with some of the greatest deprivation in the country.

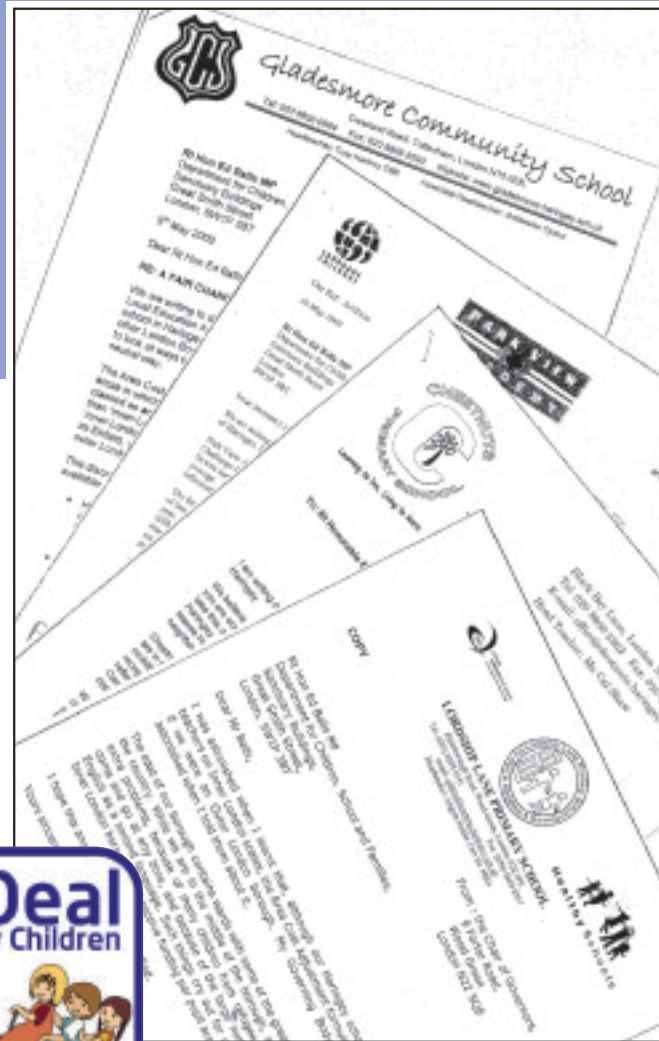

"While we are in the middle of the borough, our own school has extra problems, because a large number of children speak English as a second language. Such things cry out for us to be classed as an inner London borough and receive funding per pupil accordingly."

Amobi Modu, chairman of the governors at Park View Academy in Langham Road, Tottenham, wrote in his letter: "If Haringey were funded fairly we would be able to address the diverse and complex needs of our students much more effectively and ensure the link between deprivation and educational achievement was broken permanently. We are already pushing at the boundaries of what is possible but know that there is much more we could do."

But in February Mr Balls offered "no guarantees" the government would increase school funding in Haringey in the 2011 review when he replied to a letter from Lynne Featherstone, MP for Hornsey and Wood Green.

The petition currently has almost 700 signatures from supporters including teachers, staff and pupils both inside and out of Haringey. For more information about the campaign and to sign the petition visit www.fairdealforharingeychildren.org.

Conservation area's 'at-risk' status spurs plea

DESIGNED in the 19th century by the Artesans, Labourers and General Dwelling Company, Noel Park Estate in Wood Green has undisputed historic value.

But the charming cluster of homes, once striking for their period features, is now just as eye-catching for its ugly satellite dishes and plastic windows – unlawful changes which have defaced the area in recent years.

Conservationists are urging residents to help maintain the original character of their homes.

Rachella Sinclair, member of Noel Park Conservation Area Advisory Group, made the plea after English Heritage published its first survey detailing conservation areas “at-risk” across London. The list showed 81 at-risk conservation areas, including two in Haringey; Scotland Green and Clyde Circus, both rows of buildings around Tottenham, as well as Noel Park estate in Gladstone Avenue which is being defaced with modern plastic windows.

Ms Sinclair said: “Apart from it being illegal to replace doors and windows on the estate due to its status as a conservation area, plastic doors and windows are damaging the character of the estate and make it look uglier.

“Haringey Council’s enforcement team should not be allowing these historic windows and doors to be replaced.

By Will Stone

“It is understandable if damaged doors and windows are letting in drafts or rainwater, but it is actually cheaper and more attractive to repair them.”

The estate’s historic value has also deteriorated because of inappropriate roofing materials and the loss of boundary walls.

According to the survey, plastic windows and doors are the biggest threat to conservation areas. Other major threats include poorly maintained roads and pavements, street litter, loss of front garden walls, loss of fences and hedges, unsightly satellite dishes and roof and chimney alterations.

Simon Thurley, chief executive of English Heritage, has also said that residents pitching in is key to protecting London’s historic buildings.

He said: “We want local people to get involved. Our survey shows that conservation areas with community support are more than twice as likely to have improved over the last three years as those without.

“And there are countless instances where civic societies and residents’ groups are helping councils by finding out what people value by doing street clutter audits, commenting on planning applications or helping to prepare lists of historic buildings.”

A spokeswoman for Homes For Haringey, which manages some of the flats on Noel Park estate, said that it will carry out appropriate work when necessary under conservation planning guidelines, but pointed out that it does not manage all the properties as some are privately owned.

Nilgun Canver, cabinet member for enforcement, said: “The council has very clear policies for the protection and promotion of the borough’s heritage and provides guidance to property owners and occupiers.

“However, areas such as Noel Park have suffered from many years of unauthorised alteration and modification.

“We know this means the heritage and conservation value of these areas is under considerable threat.

“We are doing all we can to find funding to support conservation work in areas such as Noel Park and ensure that owners upgrade their properties with traditional materials that are in keeping with the historic character of the area.”

She added that the council will work with conservation area advisory committees to help preserve the area.

Gang members jailed after brawl left two fighting for their lives

By Kim Inam

TWELVE young men from rival gangs in Tottenham and Edmonton have been sentenced after a fight in which three were stabbed.

The early morning fight on November 11, 2007 in Edmonton left two people with life-threatening injuries and local buildings damaged. The gangs used knives, baseball bats, wood and bricks as weapons. The fight happened after an earlier assault at a night-club in Newham and was linked to ongoing gang rivalry.

Some 18 suspects were arrested and almost 200 witnesses provided evidence in the police investigation led by Detective Inspector Rob Murray.

Originally two trials were scheduled, but one was cancelled after defendants offered guilty pleas. The first trial at Wood Green Crown Court began in February. Police used new legislation allowing for anonymity to secure evidence from six vital witnesses.

Five men from Tottenham, Mikel Dixon, 19, Jermaine Lewis Barnes, 21, Richie Nkundo, 19, Tion Miller, 19, and Nathan Mason, 24, were found guilty of conspiracy to commit violent disorder in April.

Aiden Palmer, 22, Karl Christian-Law, 21 and 21-year-old Jerome Bruce

De Roche, all from the Edmonton area, were also convicted of the same offence. All eight were sentenced to 22 months' imprisonment this week.

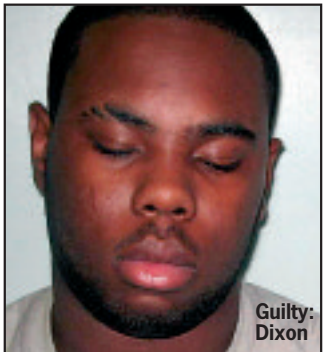

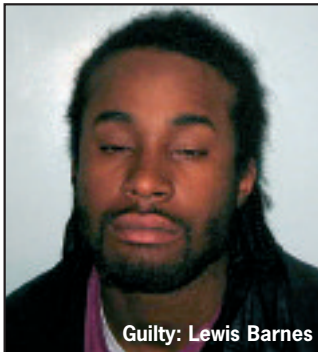

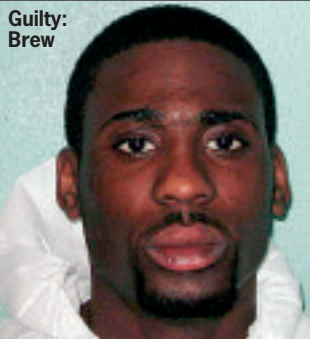

Liam Palmer, from Essex, was sentenced separately to eight years behind bars in May after being found guilty of wounding with intent and conspiracy to commit violent disorder. He had pleaded guilty to violent disorder at an earlier hearing. The 19-year-old is currently serving a four-and-a-half-year sentence for the manslaughter of Lyke Nmezu who died after a vicious attack in Ponders End in February last year.

The second trial was due to begin in May but cancelled when the three defendants pleaded guilty to violent disorder.

This week Rodney Brew, 19 from Tottenham, Richard Mensah, 21, and Ryan Gregorie, 22, both from Edmonton, were given two-year supervision orders and 300 hours of community service each.

DI Murray said: "This was a large and challenging investigation and demonstrates our commitment to pursuing and convicting offenders intent on committing gang and knife crime.

"I am particularly grateful to the members of the local community who provided the necessary evidence to convict those involved."

Rapists who disfigured girl to serve longer jail sentences

By Will Stone

TWO men involved in the gang rape of a 16-year-old girl who was disfigured with caustic soda will serve longer prison sentences.

The girl, who has learning disabilities, was lured into an empty home in Antill Road, Tottenham, on January 9, 2008, where she was gang raped for more than two hours.

Rogel McMorris, 18, of Antill Road, threw caustic soda he found under a sink over the defenceless girl after he raped her in a bid to destroy DNA evidence. The soda, used to unblock drains, caused 50 per cent burns to her body. She has been left permanently disfigured, needs regular skin grafts, plastic surgery and counselling.

In January, McMorris was given nine years for rape and GBH. Jason Brew, 19, of High Cross Road, Tottenham, and Hector Muaimba, 20, of Walthamstow, were also sentenced for rape, they were given six and eight years respectively. But the sentences were referred to the Court of Appeal by Attorney General Baroness Patricia Scotland for being "unduly lenient".

The three judges at the appeal court ruled on Thursday that both McMorris and Brew's sentences were unduly lenient.

They decided to increase McMorris' jail term by five years, from nine to 14, and Brew's by three years, from six to nine. Muaimba, who is serving two of his eight year prison sentence for a separate robbery charge, will not have his sentence increased.

Baroness Scotland said: "This was a horrific case and I believed the sentences in this case were unduly lenient because they did not reflect the dehumanising treatment of the victim. I am pleased that the court agreed with the assessment and decided to increase two of the three sentences."

Schools on track to let children try different sports

MORE than 500 11-year-olds took the opportunity to try out a variety of different sporting activities.

Following on from the success of last year's event, 30 primary schools descended on the Lee Valley Athletics Centre to take part in the borough's own mini Olympic and Paralympic festival.

As many as 30 different sporting activities were held across the afternoon, including trampolining, boccia, judo, table tennis, fencing and football challenges.

With each school representing a different country, the event got under way with a colourful torch relay – with flags flying and children running round the track.

A mass aerobic warm-up followed, while there were also dance performances from a variety of schools.

The annual event concluded with a relay competition, and the winning schools from each race were presented with their medals by top British athletes, including sprinter Luke Fagan from Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club.

"It was a fantastic event," said sports development manager Jan Hickman. "It just gets bigger every year. We want to get as many youngsters as possible to be inspired by sport. We've got the greatest show on earth coming to London in three years, and it really captured the Olympic spirit."

"One of the objectives was to get the kids to go back to their schools to set up their own mini Olympics and to try to get every child involved."

On the run: Sports included trampolining, judo, table tennis, fencing and athletics

Cycle ride racks up the miles for hospice charity

SCORES of cyclists of all ages and abilities took part in a mass bike rally on Sunday to raise much-needed funds for the Nightingale Hospice.

Cycling clubs joined forces for the ten-mile ride, which saw riders taking to the saddle to raise more than £5,000 for the charity, which cares for people living with cancer.

The rally was launched by mayor Eleftherios Savva, with riders holding a barbecue in Town Park while a steel pan band performed courtesy of pupils from Hazelbury Junior School, in Hazelbury Road, Edmonton.

Richard Reeve of Edmonton Cycling Club, which provided marshals for the event, said: "It was great to see such a big turnout. Cycling has been enjoying a real resurgence across London and it seems that this area is no exception."

Mary Rose, fundraising manager at Nightingale Hospice Community Trust, added: "We have been delighted with the response to this event, which, as well as raising much-needed funds for the hospice, was a great day out for everyone who came along. We look forward to helping to organise similar events in the future."

Life changes to make kids healthy

Change4Life is a nationwide movement which aims to help us all, but especially our kids, eat well, move more and live longer. Did you know that if we carry on as we are, nine out of ten of today's kids risk growing up with dangerous levels of fat in their bodies? This can cause serious illnesses like heart disease, cancer and type 2 diabetes in later life.

Change4Life is here to help, and making changes doesn't need to be difficult.

8 Easy Ways to Change4Life We all want our children to grow up to be happy, healthy adults. But it can sometimes be hard to know how. So here are eight easy tips:

60 Active Minutes

Kids need to do at least 60 minutes of physical activity every day that gets their heart beating faster than usual.

Me size meals

When kids eat more than their bodies need, it converts to stored fat. So many families are making a conscious effort to serve kids kid-sized portions.

Sugar Swaps

Excess sugar can lead to stored fat in the body. To prevent this, many families swap food and drink with added sugar for stuff that's lower in sugar or sugar-free.

Cut Back Fat

There are plenty of simple ways to go easy on the fat – things like swapping certain foods for others and changes to the way we prepare and cook food.

Meal times

Rushing, making do and eating on the go all lead to healthier eating habits. That's why making time for regular meals is important.

5 a Day

Fruit and veg are packed with essential vitamins, minerals and fibre. So it's important for kids to eat a variety of at least five portions every day.

Snack Check

Many snacks can be high in all the things we shouldn't eat too much of. Many families find that setting a limit on snacks is a great way of keeping a lid on snacking.

Up and About

Modern life has made things much more comfortable for us – so comfortable, in fact, that most of us spend too long sitting down doing nothing much at all! But simply being up, about and moving burns calories.

Job conman caught after advert scam

Unemployed targeted for upfront cash for fake vacancies

By Will Stone

CONMEN operating in Haringey are scamming the unemployed out of money by getting them to sign up for jobs that do not exist.

Haringey Council has already stopped one man in his tracks, Ibrahim Shevket, who published misleading adverts through his company Top Star Mail-share based in Queens Road, Bounds Green, but warns there may be more.

Shevket placed adverts in national newspapers offering work stuffing envelopes, but asked those applying to send a £30 fee "to discourage timewasters", which he said would be refunded upon request or when they had completed a consignment of work.

But Shevket failed to provide work or refunds and threatened people who challenged him.

Under the Enterprise Act 2002, Haringey's Trading Standards were able to get refunds for some of those who applied and it is the first case of its kind where the act has been used.

Nilgun Canver, cabinet member for enforcement, said: "This man has been taking money from people looking for work and is conning some of our most vulnerable people who cannot afford to throw money away. I am very pleased our trading standards officers pursued this case and stopped him from continuing his behaviour in Haringey."

Markos Chrysostomou, director of Haringey's Citizens' Advice Bureau, warned that there is also a surge in spam emails asking people to enter their bank details for large sums of money.

He said: "The recession has made it easy pickings for scammers and fraudsters. I'm receiving dozens of bogus emails from banks myself. People need to be more sceptical than ever, especially when things are being offered that seem too good to be true."

Sacha's US shocker

Brüno (18)

Dir: Larry Charles
Starring: Sacha Baron Cohen

IN THE row in front author Toby Young is sliding off his chair and giggling like a loon while, my friend, Polly, puts her head in her hands, whispers "Oh God" and laughs in disbelief.

It's not often you watch a whole film peering through your fingers. In fact, since my friends' slasher flick fixation in our teens, it's only happened once before - Borat in 2006. Unsurprisingly, therefore, that Sacha Baron Cohen is the instigator yet again of the best cringeworthy, pseudo documentary laugh riot of the year celebrating, "the greatest Austrian since Hitler".

Taking a more scattergun approach than Borat, and relying too much on sex gags, there are enough genius set-pieces in Brüno to make this 80-odd minutes of pure, unadulterated pleasure that often exposes the hypocrisy and mind-boggling stupidity of bigoted America.

The plot, such as it is, revolves around the supremely camp Austrian trying to make it big in the US after having his show, Funkyzeit Mit Brüno, axed - following a great scene in which he invades Milan Fashion Week in a purely Velcro suit. Accompanied by his trusted sidekick Lutz he heads off to cause chaos on chat shows, swingers' parties, focus groups and beer-swilling, psycho cage fights with his distinctive brand of ultra-queerness and extreme sartorial style.

Besides Baron Cohen's balls being bigger than Neil Armstrong's (you do wonder how he hasn't as yet been hospitalised, especially after Brüno's antics in the middle-east part of the film), his particular talent is the deadpan way he encourages people enough to reveal that ghastly side of themselves hidden in the everyday.

It's great fun hearing Paula Abdul talk at length about her great love of humanitarian causes while sitting on a menial Mexican, because Brüno doesn't have any furniture, but also deeply disturbing when starry-eyed parents, keen on getting their tots on TV, answer in the affirmative to his questions such as: "Is your baby fine with lit phosphorus... antiquated machinery... losing ten pounds through liposuction?!"

So, take a bow Mr Baron Cohen... but how on earth can you top this next time? Although we probably thought the exact same thing after Borat...

Now Showing...

Public Enemies (15)

A misfiring gangster flick and a poor relation to the Cagney classic, The Public Enemy. Johnny Depp plays John Dillinger, Christian Bale plays his police hunter nemesis, but both fire blanks under heavy-handed direction from Michael Mann.

Sunshine Cleaning (15)

Ain't no sunshine when they come. Amy Adams and Emily Blunt star as two quirky sisters who set up the Sunshine Cleaning business. Shame they couldn't disinfect their script free from glib sentimentality and a contrived need for kookiness.

Telstar (15)

What The Boat That Rocked should have been if it had any balls. Suitably sleazy look at life and times of maverick record producer Joe Meek who created some of the most evocative tunes of the 1960s. Con O'Neill as Meek is terrifying and brilliant.

Two contrasting classics released in the same week make this a great time for vintage film lovers. Both deserve your time and attention.

Double line-up of killer comedy

"WELL, at least I don't get shot this time!" said Janet Praverman, laughing. "The last time they pumped five bullets into me and the time before they shot me and forgot to take me off stage so I had to crawl off at the end!"

And yet, once again, murder most horrid will be enacted upon a stage near you as Protos Theatre and Arts Group keep the audience guessing into who exactly is the cold-blooded killer in The Affair At Meddler's Top.

"It's split between a court case to find the murderer and what actually happened at this posh party featuring all these eccentric characters," said Janet. "As you guessed it's a very funny comedy and I play this Russian Baroness called Svetlania Gorianova who keeps trying to jump Sir Hector. I feel quite sorry for Kevin who plays the part as I keep going up to him and saying, 'Come on dahhhling,' and trying to get my leg over!"

Such racy antics are saved until the second half, following a ploughman's lunch, as the first half its taken up with Easy Stages, another comedy, set backstage to a production of Hamlet.

Smoking form: Janet Praverman and Sam Beckler keep you guessing in a comic mystery

Uncover Jambo's secrets

The Gannets*Jambo, 127 High Cross Rd, Tottenham Hale
020 8885 5738

NESTLED among the tower blocks and giant retail stores there lies an East African gem.

Jambo is a Ugandan cafe/restaurant so far off the beaten track that very few will know it even exists. Having an ever-adventurous pallet, I knew this would be right up Globe-trotting Gannet's street.

A plate of exceptional homemade samosas accompanied by a bowl of crunchy plantain and cassava chips (£3 each) were washed down with large Kenyan beers and chai tea.

These deliciously simple, yet moderately sized starters, had not prepared GG and I for the belt-busting portions to follow. The tenderest of beef stews that makes me salivate just remembering (especially the price – £3!) was served with pusho, a maize meal dough. Fish "matooke" (fish in steamed and mashed green bananas – £8) was served alongside a lumonde (seasoned sweet potato-£3) all accompanied with heaps of vegetable rice and chapatis in a banquet fit for any African king.

Eating at Jambo is a truly fascinating experience. The ingredients and flavours were a welcome alternative to the several so-called world cuisine options available on most high streets. The dining experience itself is unique from any I have experienced before. Booking a table at Jambo is more like being invited into an African home for a feast, such is the hospitality and family vibe. Our waitress encouraged us to try new things and recommended dishes more accustomed to western tastes, and she also cooked our meals.

We chatted with her brother before her grandfather John joined us at the table and John and I whiled away the evening discussing our nations' food and the villainy of Idi Amin.

If you're growing tired of eating out and your taste buds are looking for something new, head to Jambo for delicious and enormous servings of reasonably priced home-cooked grub that is perfect for large groups. Ugandan John said to us "Come here for three weeks and you'll need a new pair of trousers". After switching permanently to elastic waists I can only agree. There's still leftovers in the fridge too!

● Opening hours: 5pm until late, seven days a week.

CYPRUS NEED OUR SUPPORT - BE THERE!!

The Sovereignty of Cyprus

The President of the Republic of Cyprus, Demetris Christofias and the Turkish-Cypriot Leader Mehmet Ali Talat, agree that the negotiating basis is a bizonal, bicomunal federation with a single sovereignty, a single citizenship and a single international identity.

Britain - Guarantor Power Commitment to its Obligation to Cyprus

The above is supported by Britain and, recently, Prime Minister Gordon Brown confirmed the UK's commitment to its obligations to Cyprus. The Prime Minister further stated that the UK supports the talks between the two leaders in their efforts to reunify Cyprus. Both the UK and Cyprus have committed themselves to working together to reunify the island.

We call upon our British Government to exert its influence upon Turkey to support this process for a successful result for Cyprus.

European Union Principles

As Cyprus is a Member Country of the EU, a comprehensive and durable solution for Cyprus will also be based on the principles upon which the EU is founded.

Cyprus - A Member Country of the European Union - Still Under Occupation!

However, how can Cyprus - a Member Country of the EU, as is the UK - still be occupied by a foreign power, i.e. Turkey - after 35 years?

Missing for 35 years

A solution to the Cyprus problem will solve the 35-year old existing tragedy of all the Missing, amongst whom are also British Cypriots.

Turkey's Obligations

The EU has taken positive steps for Turkey to join the European family, providing she meets her obligations, recognising all EU Members, including the Republic of Cyprus.

Cyprus belongs to the Cypriots!Turkish Troops and Illegal Settlers from Turkey outnumber the Turkish-Cypriot citizens in the occupied area of Cyprus. The 43000 Turkish Troops on the little island of Cyprus are more than the American troops in Afghanistan! Turkey must withdraw her troops from Cyprus, so that Cypriots can pursue their own solution.

CAN HARRY COAX FIGO?

Spurs boss in bid to persuade legend to end glittering career at the Lane

By Lee Husson

HARRY REDKNAPP is reportedly weighing up a shock move for Luis Figo after trying to coax the Portuguese legend out of retirement.

One of the finest players of the modern era, Figo, now 36, said he would hang up his boots after bringing an end to a glittering 20-year career at Italian champions Inter Milan last season.

The 2001 FIFA world player of the year was at one point the most expensive player in the world when Real Madrid forked out more than £40million to take him to the Santiago Bernabeu from bitter rivals Barcelona in 2000.

But the Tottenham Hotspur boss suggested that the former "galactico" was still considering his future after speaking with him at the recent Sir Bobby Robson Golf Classic tournament in the Algarve.

"We talked, since he is a great friend of Sir Bobby," Redknapp told Portuguese newspaper A Bola. "Obviously we talked about football and he told me he had not yet decided anything about his future."

Meanwhile, Spurs are also reportedly locked in a tug-of-war with Aston Villa to sign Sweden under-21 star Marcus Berg.

The young Groningen striker finished as top scorer at the recent European Under-21 Championships with seven goals, including a hat-trick against Belarus.

His success in the event has driven the Dutch side's asking price up to about £10m, while manager Hans Nijland confirmed that there are clubs considering signing Berg.

Tottenham are keen to offload strikers Darren Bent and Roman Pavlyuchenko, who was rumoured to be the subject of interest from Villarreal last week, before bidding for the Swede.

Meanwhile, Didier Zokora has been priced out of a move to Sevilla after Spurs refused to baulk on their £12m asking price, but Gareth Bale could be on his way to Birmingham for a £5m fee.

Bowing out: But could Luis Figo say goodbye to football with a Spurs swansong?

Improved attacking display is not enough

A MUCH-IMPROVED attacking display could not prevent the London Skolars from suffering yet another heavy defeat on Sunday as they slumped to a 60-28 reversal at high-flying Keighley Cougars in Rugby League's Co-operative Championship One.

The Skolars went into the clash having scored just 92 points from ten league matches, but they fully exposed the Cougars' defensive frailties to notch their highest score of the season.

First-half tries from Chad Isles, Jeremy Girault and Corey Simms – all converted by Paul Thorman – raised the Skolars' hopes of a shock win as they only trailed by six points at the interval.

But, although Simms and Girault added further unconverted tries in the second period, Keighley's extra class told as the match progressed and they eventually ran out comfortable winners.

Dan Potter (two), Daley Williams and Scott Law all scored tries in the first half, but it was not until after the interval that the hosts really began to cut loose.

Law crossed the line twice more to complete a hat-trick, while Jon Pressley (two), Williams, and Carl Hughes also scored as the Skolars fell away.

Scrum-half Danny Jones enjoyed an impressive afternoon with the boot for Keighley, converting all ten tries to help the side maintain their unbeaten home record.

The London Skolars return to action with a home match against fellow-strugglers Rochdale on July 19 (3pm).

Defeat sees North Mid drop out

NORTH MIDDLESEX dropped out of the promotion places in Division Two of the Middlesex County Cricket League after slumping to a seven-wicket defeat at home to fellow high-fliers Acton on Saturday.

The hosts struggled badly after being put in to bat and were eventually dismissed for just 103 in 38 overs, and in-form Acton had few problems in reaching their modest target as they raced to 104-3 to climb above North Middlesex into the second promotion place.

North London remain rooted to the foot of the table after losing by three wickets at Enfield.

Patrick Mills' 51 and 50 from Chris Ridley helped North London to make 158 – despite six wickets from Nick Jackson – but Jack Plumb's 63 enabled the hosts to make it to 159-7 to seal the win.

Meanwhile, Hornsey shrugged off the blow of having five points deducted for fielding an unregistered player by beating Harrow Town by 49 runs to keep their place at the top of Division Three.

But Highgate lost ground in the promotion race as they suffered a three-wicket defeat at Barnet Bs.

Although Craig Gourlay (55) and James Warburton (55) played well for Highgate as they made 200-9, Vinnie Khara's unbeaten 84 helped to guide the hosts to 204-7.
